THE CONSPIRACY TRIALS. Proceedings This Morning.

AN IMPORTANT WITNESS.

THE COURT CLEARED. The Court met at 10 o'clock this morning, all the members present. Shortly after the Court had assembled Judge Advocate General Holt stated that it was necessary to recall the important witness whose tessimony was taken with closed doors Saturday evening (it will be remembered), as he wished to leave the city. It would require but a short time to take this additional testimony, and he would ask that it be proceeded with at this

The President of the Court, Major General Hunter, accordingly directed that the Court room be cleared; and the witness referred to was again placed upon the stand. After the further examination of this witness had been concluded the doors were re-opened and the reading of the proceedings of Saturday entered

FROM MOBILE. Surrender of the Rebel Navy-The Terms

Agreed Upon-Surrender of the Rebel Naval Forces of Mobile. The Navy Department on Saturday received a communication from Acting Rear Admiral Thatcher, under date of May 6th, off Mobile, in which he says:

"I have the honor to inform the Department that on the night of the 4th instant I received written propositions from Commodore Ebene-zer Farrand, commanding the Confederate forces in these waters, the surrender to me of all the Rebel naval forces, officers, men and public property yet afloat, under his command and now blockaded by a portion of our naval forces in the Tombigbee river, and desiring a meeting with me to arrange terms of surrender to the United States. I accordingly met Commodore Farrand at Citronville, a point about twenty-five miles above Mobile, and accepted his proposal on the same basis as granted to Gen. Richard Taylor by Major General Canby, the latter having taken place at the same point and time, Gen. Canby being present. Some days will elapse before all the arrangements will be completed for the reception of the Contederate officers, men, vessels and property, when further details, with copies of all the correspondence and the written agreement and obligations will be officially made known to the Department."

THE CONSPIRACY TRIALS. Proceedings This Afternoon.

THE COURT ROOM REOPENED.

When we concluded our report for the first edition the court room had been cleared in order to recall the witness examined with closed doors on Saturday evening. Upon the conclusion of his testimony and the reading of his testimony of Saturday, the court room was reopened about 12 o'clock.

A number of visitors were waiting for admission, and in a few moments every portion of the room-with the exception of that occupied by the Commission, which this morning is anclosed by a railing-was filled. Among the visitors were Brig. Gen. Slough, of Alexandria; Paymaster H. Bridge, Chief of the Nav 11 Bureau of Provisions and Clothing. A large number of ladies are present to-day. The reading of the proceedings of Saturday occupied the attention of the Commission until fifteen minutes to one o'clock.

Miss NORAH FITZPATRICK was the first witness called to the stand : - Witness lived at Mrs. Suratt's house in March last, and during her stay there last winter saw Booth at the house with John H. Surratt. She also saw a person there called Wood who she identifies as Payne. She also identified Atzerott as having been there. She saw Wood (Payne) at the house twice. Atzerott she saw at the house for a short time, and understood that he staid at the house one night. Witness never saw Herold at the house. Witness went to the the-ater with Surratt and Wood (Payne) one night in March, and occupied an upper box. Miss Bean was also with them, and while they were in the box Beoth came in. Witness went to Baltimere the following day. By the Court :- Witness does not recollect which side of the theater the box was on.

THE REVIEW. To-morrow and next day will be signalized by one of the grandest military displays of the world. Three immense armies-the Army of the Potomac, Major Gen. Meade; the Army of Georgia, Major Gen. Sherman; and the Cavalry Corps, Major Gen. Sheridan,-will pass in review before the people, the President, and his Cabinet, and the representatives of all nations. There will be present those whose deeds are unequalled, whose names are immortal. We may scarcely imagine the variety and degree of sentiment with which the grand army will be welcomed, but of all the thoughts suggusted by the occasion, the most inspiring reflection will be that [these stern, battle-scarred legions are about to lay up their banners, resign their power and pomp, and return to the avocations of civil life, to enjoy the peaceful fruits of their sacrifices and heroism. Thousands of distinguished citizens are flocking to the city, and the review will doubtless be witnessed by a larger concourse of people than ever assembled in Washington before.

Fight between White and Colored Troops. MEMPHIS, May 19, via Cairo -The influx of paroled prisoners here caused great excitement among the colored troops here. THE CONSPIRACY TRIALS. The Proceedings This Evening.

THE CASES OF HEROLD, O'LAUGH LIN, PAYNE AND SPANGLER.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONY !! JEFF DAVIS IMPLICATED !!

CAPTURE OF THE REBEL ANCHIVES AII ASSASSINATION PROPOSITION. JEFF DAVIS ENDORSES IT !!!

The Court took a recess from 1 to 2 o'clock. On re-assembling, the room was greatly crowded, so as to seriously inconvenience the reporters and others having legitimate business in the room.

Shortly after the court came together, and before the proceedings had been resumed, the gallant Gen. Custar and his beautiful bride entered the room, and they were made much of by the fellow officers of Gen. U. George Bancroft, the historian, was present this evening; also Senator Chandler and Hon. Mr. Grow of Pennsylvania.

Upon the entrance of the prisoners, the spectators rose on tiptoe, and the usual ejaculations followed in regard to the different prisoners. The great curiosity amongst the lady visitors seems to be in regard to Payne. Mrs. Surratt and Heroid come next in popular interest.

The crush of spectators this evening was so great in the direction of the prisoners' dock as to interfere with bringing in the prisoners, and the guards were forced to push the crowd back. The prisoners look much as heretofore. Mudd, who, during the hot weather, has come in his shirt sleeves, appears this afternoon in a brown linen coat, in compliment, perhaps, to the lady spectators. Capt. DOUGHERTY sworn: - Witness had command of the detachment of 16th New York cavalry that went from this city in pursuit of Wilkes Booth. Judge Advocate General Holt stated to the witness that they had already the details of the occurrences connected with the capture and death of Booth, and asked him to detail what transpired more particularly in regard to Witness said that at the barn (Garrett's) there was considerable conversation about arms Booth at first denied that there was any one in the barn with him. Afterward there was some conversation inside, and then Booth called out, "Captain, here's a man that wants to surrender awful bad." When Herold came to the door of the barn, witness asked him to put out his hands, which he did, and witness secured him. He then searched him for arms, and finding none asked him if he had anything on his person. Herold replied that he had "nothing except this," pulling out a piece of a map. Witness hearing the shot fired in the barn, entered, dragging Herold into the barn with him. When they came out of the barn Herold said, "Let me go: I'll stay around here: I won't go away.'

Witness told him "No, that would nt do." Herold then asked "who was that man who was shot in the barn ?" Witness replied, "You know who it is; it is Booth." Herold said, "Why, he told me his name was Boyd." Herold afterwards said that he met Booth about seven miles from Washington, by accident, on the night of the assassination. Herold at first persisted in saying that he didn't know Booth; that he knew him only by the name of Boyd. Her-old said they crossed the river at Matthias Point. Witness does not remember hearing Herold say anything in regard to where they stopped on their flight at night. Witness heard some mention of the name of a Dr. Stewart, but don't remember that Herold said it. By Mr. Stone:-Booth said in the barn " I am the only guilty man," or words to that effect. Herold made no resistance except that coming home he said his feet were sore and that he couldn't walk; witness got a horse and mounted him. By Mr. Clampitt:—Booth used words to the effect that Herold was innocent. Don't remember the exact words. WM. E. CLEVER sworn:-Witness keeps a ivery stable on 6th street in this city; Booth kept horses at witness' stable in January—a light bay horse part of the time. Surratt hired horses to go down the country to a party with Booth. Booth sold the horse about the 30th of January to Samuel Arnold, (the prisoner): Arnold paid witness the livery for the horse and took him away. By Mr. Ewing:—Arnold took the horse away on the 5th of February last. Booth gave orders to let Surratt have his horses whenever he wanted them. Never saw Arnold there with Booth or Surratt. Don't think he ever saw Arnold there but twice. J. H. McPhail recalled :- The prisoner O'Laughlin has been in the rebel service, and came into the lines at Martinsburg about Sep. tember, 1863. O'Laughlin stated that he had taken the oath at Martinsburg. Witness examined the record and saw the oath, dated June 16th, 1863.

By Mr. Cox:-It appears that he took the oath at Baltimore. Witness understood from him that he came into the lines at Martinsburg. Witness had seen the handwriting of O'Laughlin, and he believed the aignature to the oath to be gen. By the Court :- Witness has known the fainilv for thirty years.

Dr. T. S. VERDI sworn: - Witness was called to the residence of Secretary Seward on the night of the 14th of April. Witness found Mr. Hansell seriously wounded—one on right side over the fifth rib. Witness described the wounds of the other parties wounded.

By Mr. Doster:—Mr. Frederick Seward was conscious, and knew witness, but could not speak. He appeared sensible for about half an hour, but then went into a sleep. Witness, after examining the wound of the elder Seward, pronounced them not mortal. Mr. Seward was improving from the injuries he had received previously at the time.

JOHN BOHRAN (Peanut John) recalled: Witness said Spangler fitted up the stable oc-cupied by Booth's horse in January last for Both. Spangler raised it up and fitted a place for a carriage in January last. There was a place for two horses. The buggy that Booth formerly had there was sold by Spangler at the bazaar on the Wednesday before the assas-

By Mr. Ewing:—Booth and Gifford told Spangler on the Monday before to sell the buggy, and witness cleaned it off. JAMES MADDOX, sworn -Witness was em-ployed at Ford's last winter, and rented the stable last December for Mr. Booth from Mrs. Davis. Witness paid the rent, Booth giving the money. Witness was near the box when it was being decorated by Harry Ford; had not seen the rocking chair in the box before for two years. Witness had not been in the box since By Mr. Ewing:-Witness saw Harry Ford in the President's box at the time it was being deccrated. Did not see any others there at the time, but there might have been others. Did not see who put the rocking chair in the box. Saw the colored man Joe Simms carrying the chair on his head from Harry Ford's room to the theater, but don't know who put it in the box. Witness thinks the last time previously he saw the rocking chair in the box was when the President visited the theater in 1961. By Mr. Ewing:—The business of witness at the theater was properly man. The passage way through which Booth made his escape is usually clear. Spangler's position on the stage is on the right hand side of the stage, (same spangler on the night in question, and did not sent from his post over ave minutes without being missed. Witness had been in front while the second act was on, but did not see Spangler. Witness was at the first en'rance left hand side when the shot was fired. Saw Spangler in his place not more than 3 or 4 minutes before the assassination. Witness just saw a glimpse of Booth as he crossed the sage. Witness aid not hear Booth call for Spangler on that night.

By Mr. Bingham:—Witness heard that the

By Mr. Bingham:—Witness heard that the President was coming that night about twelve o'clock in the day, from Henry Ford. Witness heard one of the detectives at the Treasury say that the President was coming that night.

At the end of the testimony of this witness the court took a recess of 20 minutes.

When the Commission re-assembled:—
Lieut R. Barelett, Signal Corps, sworn.
Was a prisoper from the 3d of March to July 16th, 1864, in Eibbey Prison. Witness testified as to that prison having bean mined to blow up the prisoners in case of an attempt at rescue. Was told that there was a torpedo there. A large excavation had been made directly unter the centre of the prison. Different ones said that it was mined so that if our force got into the city for the purpose of liberating them they would be blown up.

Col. R. B. Trent, Chief Commissary of the Army of the Ohio, sworn.—Witness testified to Gen. Joe Johnston having delivered to Gen. Schofield, at Charlotte, N. C., saveral boxes said to contain the archives of the Rebel War Department. The boxes were mostly labelled Department. The boxes were mostly labelled and the contents indicated.

Major EXERT Te-called: - Witness received the boxes above referred to yesterday morning and some of them were opened by Mr. Hall.

Mr. R. B. Hall sworn — Witness opened some of the boxes referred to by the two preceding witnesses, and he identified a paper shown him as having been taken from one of the boxes. The paper was a letter addressed "To his Excellency President Davis," dated at Montgomery, White Sulphur Springs, Va., in which the writer says that he now offers his services to the Confederacy, and he is willing to proceed to rid the country of its ing to proceed to rid the country of its deadliest enemies, and all he asked was for the necessary papers to give him traveling facilities within the Confederate States. He says he is well acquainted in the Northern States, and that he is a lieutenant in Duke's command. He also states that he was in John Morgan's raid, and finding a good opportunity to escape he run the gauntlet of being captured by the Union troops and made his way to Canada, where he was assisted by Colonel J. P. Holcombe and managed to run the blockade. He says "If I do anything I shall expect your full confidence," and anything I shall expect your full confidence," and expresses his wish for an answer soon and for a short interview.
